Can the Blind See?

Can the eyesight be preserved? Can imperfect vision be restored? Can the aged enjoy reading as the young? Can science assist you? Most assuredly, yes. Remember that eyesight is precious, and that sight once lost can never be restored. Persons who buy a pair of cheap, imperfect spectacles, thinking it economy, not knowing that they are doing themselves irreparable injury until it is too late. The popular opinion that the use of glasses should be postponed as long as possible is erroneous. As soon as you find your sight falling so at once to a specialist and have your eyes tested and glasses properly fitted. An invitation is extended to those who have never been able to find glasses to suit them, and to all in need of proper lenses to visit our new Optical Department.

IT'S ALL ONE WAY.

In Betting the Popocrats are on the Defensive.

WANT THE LONGEST OF ODDS.

And Even at that are Not Wagering Much Money—A Wheeling Man Bets $1,000 that McKinley will Carry West Virginia—He Also Makes Other Wagers—On the General Result there is Scarcely Any Money Up—No Pool Room Betting.

The betting man generally takes a cold blooded view of whatever he risks his money on—elections are no exception to this rule, and even the most rabid Popocrat holds out for the longest odds he can obtain, and in this campaign he manages to obtain some pretty good odds on the general result. In fact the prevailing odds in the eastern pool rooms are so great—4 to 1 on McKinley—that betting by Republicans on the Ohio man does not amount to much here.

Taken altogether, there is less money wagered this fall than in the average presidential election year, and most of the betting is on the other candidates. A notable offer to bet was made in Weston by a Wheeling man, Mr. A. L. Rice, of A. L. Rice & Company, who will wager $1,000 that West Virginia will go for McKinley. A forfeit of $100 was put up Saturday by Mr. Rice and a certified check for the balance, $900, was sent to the stakeholder yesterday, but a special to the Intelligencer received late last night states that no taker had yet appeared.

J. A. Moore is a New York traveling man who is in the city, a guest at the McLaure. Last night he asked the Intelligencer to state that he had $1,000 to wager on the election of McKinley at odds of 2 to 1. He prefers to take no less than $50 to his $100. He can be seen at the McLaure until 2:00 o'clock this afternoon.

Several bets have been made that Ohio county will give McKinley more than the 1,600 majority by which the head of the ticket of 1891, Captain Dwyer, carried it. There is a feeling that is running general that Mr. Richards will not fall behind his ticket to a great extent, and many bets that he will have seven hundred majority are being made, and one or two Republicans have wagered that Richards will lead by 1,000 votes.

The local press have posted no election odds, for the reason that all the money offered is on one side, which is, needless to say, the Republican side. Popocratic Democrats who, in former years, always made wagers on the election, are now silent. They take a great deal, but of the kind of talk that is heard in connection with money, they know nothing this fall.

IN A SILVER COUNTRY.

United States Minister to the Argentine Republic Shows that the Condition of Farmers, Merchants and Workmen is Unsatisfactory with a Fluctuating Currency.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 26.—Mr. Buchanan, United States minister to the Argentine Republic, in a report to the department of state on money and prices in foreign countries, says: "A majority of those who have written to me from the United States regarding wages and prices have invariably asked me to give them the result of my observations with regard to the practical workings of the cheap money system of this country, as it has effected the farmer and wage earner."

On this point let me say that from an extended and careful personal examination I am convinced that with possibly a few exceptions all classes of workmen here to-day are receiving less wages, the purchasing power of their money being considered, than they were ten years ago. It is true and easily understood that as long as gold was rising the farmer who was selling his products, as he had always done and continues to do, on a gold price fixed outside of the country, was steadily receiving higher paper prices for all he had to sell and was in consequence a direct gainer by high gold. It is equally true that he has been the gainer in other ways; for his land, than he paid five years ago. Strange as it seems he had paid and in to-day paying but a trifle more to his laborers than when gold was on a par ten years ago, and as he produces on his farm the meat, vegetables, etc., necessary for his family, he has had the lion share of the gain in the rise in gold.

On the other hand, the workman found it very difficult to get an increase in his wages as gold advanced. It required four years for him to get an increase of 40 per cent in his earnings, while the farmer had been receiving the benefit of an increase in the gold premium averaging more than 50 per cent for the same period. In the meantime the merchant found it easy and profitable to increase the price of his goods in keeping with the rise of gold. Rent is likewise increased, although more slowly, and as the prices of all commodities rose the laborer found himself daily being made poorer. Agitate as he would he could not get his salary increased in any reasonable proportion to the increase in the price of his goods. He was forced to resort to all sorts of efforts were made to bring about an increase in his receipts until finally he, last year, reached what we may call "water high water mark."

Since then gold has steadily fallen. The first person to feel the decline has been the farmer, who is complaining bitterly of the relatively low prices received for his products, while he finds himself obliged to pay the same prices for what he buys that he did when he received $2.50 more for every hundred kilos of wheat than he now receives. Low gold does not induce the merchant to "mark down" his goods with the same good will he manifested when he advanced their price. Notwithstanding the decline in the employee's income as the gold declines, the wage earner who receives a gold salary finds his income disappearing while his expenses remain as before.

This period of readjustment in the value of the money of the country has brought about a complete stagnation in business. With the advent of low gold the farmer who made money on its rise, turned speculator, and holds his grain or cattle for a higher rate. The merchant cannot make collections because of this condition of things and as he has to pay for his goods he also becomes a speculator and waits for lower gold. Thus every one, to some extent, becomes a speculator, at least to the extent of trying to profit in some manner by the daily rise and fall in gold. Of the fact that the gold decline is shifting value thus given to the currency of this republic injures trade here there can be no question; and it can be equally stated as a fact that the wide fluctuations that have taken place in the value of the currency within the past year or two have brought on a commercial situation far from satisfactory to the merchants, farmers and workmen.

Uprising in Brazil.

ROME, Oct. 25.—An official telegram received here from Rio Janeiro says that a large armed band in the interior of the province of Bahia, who several years ago defeated a large detachment of troops, are again active and have pillaged a number of farms, several of them belonging to Italians. The Brazilian troops surround the band and killed several of its members and dispersed the others. Italy has demanded damages against the Brazilian government for outrages upon Italian citizens, but Italy's commissioner to Brazil to negotiate a settlement of the difficulty, has expressed the opinion that his government will confine itself to a demand for a denial of hostile intention on the part of Brazil in acts tending to harm or wrong Italians.

Minor Killed.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Oct. 26.—By the running away of a horse car on the Mid Valley colliery railroad to-day Peter Gulick, a miner, was killed, his brains being dashed out against a telegraph pole, and John H. Hubert, Andrew Gerber, James Trewitt and Michael Lukic, who were standing in the car, were injured. The runaway car crashed into several loaded ones standing at the foot of the steep decline.

Arranged for Murder.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—William J. Koerner, the newspaper artist, formerly of Pittsburgh, who was indicted for shooting to death in a saloon, Rosie Redgate, was to-day arraigned in the court of general sessions, but at the request of his counsel, pleading to the indictment was postponed.
